In this session of Speaking with Wisdom, Ms Becker will discuss some of the little thought of aspects of proper etiquette and safety when using your electronic communication.

Watch Session 3: Electronic Communication

It is a frightening thing when you realize that someone you should trust can and has betrayed you, or someone you know. The story Ms. Becker told is a true story and very personal to her. Keep in mind the pitfalls that you or one of your friends may be falling into while using the many electronic items available for our use today. Here is another story streight from the police files.

ONE YOUNG WOMAN NARROWLY ESCAPES SEXUAL SLAVERY

Nashville is a destination for many who seek the city’s myriad opportunities. One young traveler arrived at a local bus station from a nearby town and struck up a conversation with a young man who seemed kind and friendly.

When she admitted she needed a job, he said, “I have a friend who could help.”

The 20-year-old was then taken to a Red Roof Inn off I-65 in Nashville. The young woman soon learned that the “job” was actually an escort service run by father-son traffickers Timothy and Charles Lee. Locked in one of the rooms, she managed to get the attention of a hotel staff member, who called police.

Two other women were also part of the duo’s scheme. One cried to a responding officer on the scene that she hadn’t been home in five years, and she “just wanted to go home to her mother.”

Quite often you hear of a lost child. All children are at risk. It is a multi-million dollar business and your child or grandchild may be next. Pray each day for your family’s protection.

In Matthew 20:16, Jesus sends His followers out to be “smart as snakes and as soft when dealing with the world today. Keeping God in the forefront of your lives and asking Him to guide you in you decision making is the best protection we can have. Rely on it.
